- The survey results indicate a high level of satisfaction of the project partners with the quality of the KoM's organization, discussion and reporting. Further improvement was suggested in what relates to efficiency of decision-making.
- A more fluid communication might contribute to strengthen the team's shared perception and understanding of the project's activities and goals.

- Most of the partner representatives expressed their appreciation for the meetings held and suggested for additional ones to be organized specifically dedicated to discussing the technological elements of the project (i.e., remote labs, eLearning software and using data-mining for quality assessment).
- Assuring all universities receive financial support is critical for the implementation phase.
- A suggestion was made for the organization of physical mobility actions and study visits allowing for Iranian universities to become more familiar with how European universities enhance teaching and learning innovation.
- The survey results show the partners were satisfied with the quality of the PM's organization, discussion and reporting in general. However, it was also clear they've rated the different items not as high as previously when assessing the KoM. This should be taken into consideration by the WPs leaders, most especially in the case of WP2.
- Several partners feel the need for a deeper and shared understanding of the project planning. It's clear task allocation and partners responsibility within each WP have not been communicated efficiently.
